Political Economy: Exploring comparative datasets and its visualization with R
Introduction

Dr. Taehee Kim
Winter semester 2021

University of Oldenburg

Position and Contact

- Postdoc researcher ("Political System of Germany" team)
- email: taehee.kim(at)uni-oldenburg.de

Background:

- Ph.D. Political Science, Keio University, Japan
- M.Sc. Social and Economic Data Analysis, University of Konstanz

Research interests:

- Political attitudes, behavior
- Hate speech spread in social media
- Conspiracy theory and extremists' movement in social media

Course Overview

Course syllabus: here

Github repository

- Course github repository:
  `https://github.com/thkim0321/ol2021politicaleconomy`
- All the course materials will be uploaded here.
- It is publicly open for now, but will be changed private and open for only course participants. To access the repository, you need to create an github account.
- If you already have an github account, let me know. Otherwise, I send you an github invitation to your uni email account.

What you need to do by next week

- When you receive Github repository invitation..
  1. Create a Github account in case you don't have one
  2. Go to https://github.com/notifications and accept access to the course repository
  3. Visit the course repository https://github.com/thkim0321/ol2021politicaleconomy
  4. Push Star button so you can easily visit the repo. again
- Let me know via email if you are not available face to face session.
- Installation of R and RStudio → See Github repository "Preparation".

Any question?